

C G JUNG INSTITUTE OF CHICAGO

Psychotherapy and Spirituality

with Murray Stein

Friday Evening, November 2nd, 7:00 to 9:00pm

Despite his determination to keep psychoanalysis 'high and dry' above the murky regions of "occultism", esoteric wisdom, gnosis, magic, and mystical experience, Freud accidentally opened the door to the world of spirit when he suspended directed thinking in favor of free association and dream images. From the beginning of the psychoanalytic movement, artists, poets, theologians, philosophers and other non-scientific and non-medically trained people have taken part in its practice and theorizing. They have been drawn to it not primarily because of its mechanistic and scientific claims, but because it delves into the mysterious sources of creativity, imagination and the irrational creation of order. In his lecture, Murray Stein will present ways that spirituality gets into the therapeutic process and will raise questions about the differences and similarities between psychological and spiritual development.

Learning Objectives:

- Gain insight into the interplay between analysis and spirituality
- Gain insight into the differences and similarities between psychological and spiritual development

LOCATION

The Adler School of Professional Psychology, 65 E. Wacker Place, Suite 1700

DISCUSSION FEE

$50 – 2 CE credits $40 registration by October 26 $20 for students

For all registrations call 312.701.0400, or visit www.jungchicago.org

Murray Stein, Ph.D. is a graduate of the C.G. Jung Institute/Zurich and is a training analyst at the International School of Analytical Psychology in Zurich (ISAPZ). He is a founding member of the Inter-Regional Society for Jungian Analysts (USA) and the Chicago Society of Jungian Analysts and was president of the International Association for Analytical Psychology from 2001 to 2004. He has written several books, including Jung's Treatment of Christianity, In MidLife, Transformation – Emergence of the Self, Jung's Map of the Soul and The Principle of Individuation. He is the editor of Jungian Analysis and the Chiron Clinical Series.

Recommended Reading: L. Corbett & M. Stein. Contemporary Jungian Approaches to Spiritually Oriented Psychotherapy, in Spiritually Oriented Psychotherapy, eds L.Sperry, E.Shafranske, pp. 51-73.

The C. G. Jung Institute of Chicago is approved by the American Psychological Association to sponsor continuing education for psychologists and by the Illinois Department of Professional Regulation to provide continuing education (CE) credit for social workers, professional counselors and marriage and family therapists. The Institute maintains responsibility for this program and its contents.