At this “Season’s Opener” Wine and Cheese/Lecture/Discussion our goals are: 1) to illustrate the scope of the major contributions C.G. Jung has made to our understanding of the human project, 2) to present a broad review of Jung’s major theoretical ideas, and 3) to spark a lively, interesting discussion with like-minded folk who wish to learn more, or who already know a lot about Jung. Most importantly, Jung’s ideas are practical. They help us to live better, “to drink more deeply from the well.” Rose will discuss Jung’s theories on the complex, shadow, anima/animus, the Self, mythological motifs and the process of individuation. She will orient her presentation toward the practical application of these theories to life.
